Agency overview

The Law Enforcement Conduct Commission (LECC) is an independent body exercising royal commission powers to detect, investigate and expose serious misconduct within the NSW Police Force and the NSW Crime Commission. The LECC also independently monitors and reviews the investigation of complaints by the NSW Police Force and the NSW Crime Commission about the conduct of their officers. In doing so the LECC recognises the primary responsibility of those agencies to investigate and prevent officer misconduct and corruption within those agencies, while providing for oversight of those functions.

The LECC works collaboratively with the NSW Police Force and the NSW Crime Commission to educate and promote the prevention and elimination of officer misconduct, particularly through the identification of systemic issues that are likely to be conducive to the occurrence of officer misconduct and corruption. The LECC also undertakes independent, real time monitoring of critical incident investigations undertaken by the NSW Police Force, and can make reports on the conduct of critical incident investigations by the NSW Police Force.

The LECC plays a key role in strengthening the integrity of law enforcement in NSW.

Primary purpose of the role

The Integrity Division specifically provides for the independent detection, investigation and exposure of maladministration and serious misconduct within the NSW Police Force and the NSW Crime Commission.

The Intelligence Analyst actively interprets the law enforcement, corruption and misconduct environment through research, collation and analysis of information and the provision of advice, assessments and reports.

This role forms an integral part of the Intelligence Unit assisting in ensuring the efficient and effective conduct of the LECC's core functions. The Intelligence Analyst may be assigned to Strategic, Operational or Tactical Intelligence teams. Strategic Analysts inform strategic decision making and provide support to all areas of the LECC by identifying, collecting and analysing relevant data to produce intelligence products that enhance the understanding of systemic, emerging and enduring corruption and police misconduct issues and risks. Operational Analysts design and conduct intelligence projects aimed at proactively identifying subjects for investigation by investigations teams. Tactical Intelligence Analysts work within investigation teams, collecting and analysing information in support of integrity investigations.

Key accountabilities

- Professionally manage the information processes of the Integrity Division and provide efficient and effective advice to Integrity investigations through researching, gathering, collating and analysing information from a range of internal and external sources.
- Collating large volumes of information to aid in the preparation of investigations related documents and applications for warrants for listening devices, telecommunications interception and controlled operations.
- Contribute to the work of multi-disciplinary investigative teams through involvement in planning, coordinating and executing strategies to achieve the objectives of complex and highly sensitive investigative work.
- Analyse trends arising out of the information evaluation process to identify potential serious corruption risks relevant to the core business of the Commission.
- Provide advice in relation to the deployment of resources to achieve operational objectives.
- Collect, collate and analyse information relating to intelligence projects in support of business unit goals.
- Provide intelligence products and briefings on complex and highly sensitive matters derived from the evaluation and analysis of information.
- Formulate logically supported advice and recommendations for action to be taken by the LECC, NSW Police, NSW Crime Commission and/or other agencies.

Key challenges

- Make assessments on complex and significant matters underpinned by multiple pieces of legislation, ensuring that recommendations and decisions are correct, legally defensible and deliver well-balanced and objective outcomes.
- Engaging with and managing communications with various internal and external parties in the face of sometimes conflicting expectations, goals and perspectives.
- Delivering results in a high-pressure environment, often with tight resource constraints and timeframes.
