Agency overview

Legal Aid NSW is the largest legal aid agency in Australia, comprising a Central Sydney office and 28 regional offices in metropolitan and regional centres across NSW and a number of specialist services and advice clinics. It was established under the Legal Aid Commission Act 1979 as an independent authority to assist economically and socially disadvantaged people to understand and protect their rights in the legal system. People with disabilities, from people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds, women and children, Indigenous people and people with mental illness are some of the groups who may experience difficulties when enforcing and defending their rights.

Working in partnership with private lawyers, Legal Aid NSW provides legal advice, information and minor assistance and legal representation to eligible people in many areas of law. Legal Aid NSW also provides alternative dispute resolution services, community legal education programs, and publications on legal issues

Primary purpose of the role

The Conference Organiser co-ordinates, organises and promotes conferences, in accordance with Legal Aid NSW policies, guidelines and procedures to provide conferencing services as an alternative method of dispute resolution.

Key accountabilities

- Assess cases to determine suitability of conferencing with reference to FDRS policies, guidelines and procedures;
- Organise conferences under the family law conferencing program
- Advise all parties about the conference process, procedures and possible outcomes and negotiate effectively with difficulties as they arise in relation to bringing parties together;
- Select and arrange suitable chairpersons for conferences in accordance with identified special needs

- Organise and confirm conference dates and locations with all parties, according to availability and special needs and organise travel arrangements for mediators;
- Maintain and manage details of conferences organised and conference outcomes for recording and statistical purposes;
- Maintain files, associated equipment and materials and process all claims for payment relating to conferences
- Promote conferencing services as an alternative method of dispute resolution among Legal Aid NSW staff, clients, solicitors and the community.

Key challenges

- effectively manage competing priorities, involving extensive consultation and negotiation, within limited time frames and complete large volumes of work
- understand and interpret complex legal terminology and documentation, such as court orders and domestic violence orders, when assessing cases to determine suitability of conferencing
- Clients are from a range of different backgrounds and cultures, people who may be distressed or exhibiting threatening behaviours.
